Delphi turns 29! Join us for the celebration!

By Dr. Holger Flick

To the Delphi community, February 14 is not only known as Valentine's Day (you're welcome for the reminder ⚧ it is also Delphi's birthday. This year, it will turn 29 and Embarcadero -- Ian Barker to be more precise -- will be hosting a special webinar to celebrate.

As part of the celebration people from the community have been invited by Ian to join him. Not knowing who the other guests are, I will be joining him for a fun hour of Delphi chat.

Join us on Feb 14 at 1pm EST. I only that's 7pm in Germany -- all the other timezones will have to do some research The registration button below gets you to a website that does the calculation for you!

Hope you will join us!

> Note
> Delphi celebrates its 29th anniversary in mid-February, and this year, we'll be looking once again at how far Delphi has come and where it's headed. Join us for the Delphi Anniversary Webinar to celebrate how far Delphi has come and how it's looking ahead as it glances back at its original inspiration.

Free to read. Not free to make.

Every tutorial, article, and line of example code on Holger's Code is published without a paywall and without ads. This page is about what keeps it that way.

Professional work, published free

The content here is held to the same standard as professional client work: every tutorial is built as a real project, tested against current versions, documented step by step, and revisited when the frameworks move on. A single in-depth tutorial routinely takes days — and that's before the bills behind it: servers, storage, build infrastructure, licenses, and the hardware everything is verified on.

If an article or tutorial here has saved you an afternoon of debugging, taught you a technique, or helped you ship, it created real value for you. Supporting it isn't charity — it's paying for professional work you found useful, at whatever price you choose. And if you can't, keep reading anyway. That's what the free part means.
